Introduction

In the context of record spending on Virginia elections in 2021, recent polling\(^1\) by the non-partisan Wason Center\(^2\) shows that citizens of the Commonwealth overwhelmingly favor reducing, tracking, and conditioning the use of money coming from campaign donors.

Polling Results: What do Virginians think about the need for campaign finance reform?

January, 2022

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Percentage of Virginians Support</th>
<th>Issue</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>78%</td>
<td>Reducing money from big campaign donors</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>88%</td>
<td>Public disclosure of contributions</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>75%</td>
<td>Creating contribution limits</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>73%</td>
<td>Restricting personal use of campaign funds</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>56%</td>
<td>Banning corporate contributions</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>59%</td>
<td>Constitutional amendment</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

This support for campaign finance reform is deep and cuts across respondents from all demographic groups and political affiliations—86% of Democrats, 80% of Independents, and 68% of Republicans. Nearly 80 percent of respondents overall agree with the need to take action on this issue, 75 percent of voters support the imposition of campaign limits, and a solid 88 percent endorse the need for groups to publicly disclose their contributors. A strong majority (73 percent) also support banning candidates from using their campaign funds for personal use while 56 percent support banning corporate contributions.

Meanwhile, a majority of Virginians support an amendment to the U.S. Constitution which would restore the right of states and Congress to regulate election spending. This confirms the perception of voters in the Commonwealth that unchecked political spending in Virginia by corporations, unions, and special interest groups, and wealthy individuals is overwhelming the voices of average citizens. Citizens agree that it weakens our ability to freely and fairly elect a representative government of, by, and for the people. Increasingly, candidates must devote time to fundraising, rather than to directly interacting with potential voters and constituents.

---

1. Polling, which included seven questions about campaign finance in Virginia was commissioned by the citizen advocacy group, the VA Promise of American Promise (MoneyOutVA), was conducted over the November 3 to December 2, 2021 period, targeting 826 households. This included 364 on landlines and 462 on cell phones.

2. The Center, located in Newport News, Virginia, has a 10-year track record of providing citizens and lawmakers unbiased, non-partisan insight into the policy issues shaping the future of the Commonwealth. More than 100 students work side-by-side with talented faculty to produce survey research and political analysis that informs decisions by citizens and lawmakers in Virginia, and increasingly around the country.
Context

The Commonwealth of Virginia, one of five states which has absolutely no limits on campaign contributions, just held its most expensive election campaign in history. Spending on races for the House of Delegates exceeded $80 million, 20 percent higher than the last election in 2019, according to VPAP. As candidates competed for positions paying less than $18,000/year, 22 candidates each raised over $1 million for their campaigns, including 6 candidates raising over $2 million apiece. While the statistics aren’t yet available for 2021, the 2019 data on average level of contributions provided by VPAP revealed that 65 percent of total donations came from entities contributing more than $25,000.

It is estimated that the race for Governor cost over $130 million, double the already-large amount spent in 2017’s gubernatorial contest. Meanwhile, a record amount of money, estimated by VPAP at $7 million, was contributed by opaque donors and used in attack ads focused on candidates in both parties. Unsurprisingly, because Virginia has among the most lax campaign finance laws in the country, the 2020 S.W.A.M.P Index, an analysis undertaken by the Coalition for Integrity, which ranks states based on accountability and transparency in ethics and related legislation, ranks Virginia 46 out of 50.

Do you support or oppose limiting the amount of money coming from big campaign donors into our state and local elections?

Results: Virginia registered voters place a high degree of importance on reducing the amount of money coming from big campaign donors in elections with 78% indicating it is very or somewhat important to them. Republicans place somewhat less importance on this issue (68% very/somewhat important) relative to Democrats (86%) and Independents (80%). Older voters place a higher level of importance than younger voters (83% to 73%).

How important is it to you to reduce the amount of money coming from big campaign donors in our elections?

Results: Voters in the Commonwealth show moderate support for a ban on corporate contributions in Virginia state or local elections (56% support/strongly support to 37% oppose/strongly oppose). The highest levels of support come from Democrats (63%), Black voters (60%) and those living in the Hampton Roads region (64%).

Do you support or oppose banning corporate contributions to Virginia state or local election campaigns?
National studies have highlighted the continued risk to US campaign integrity associated with foreign sources of campaign funds.

Results: A large bipartisan majority of voters support requiring more extensive reporting for online credit card donations to ensure that anonymous foreign money doesn't influence our elections (86% support/strongly support to 10% oppose/strongly oppose).

Do you support or oppose requiring more extensive reporting for online credit card donations as a way to help ensure that anonymous foreign money doesn't influence our elections?

The ban would exclude childcare needed to enable campaign activities.

Results: A strong majority show support for banning candidates from using their campaign funds for personal use (73% support/strongly support to 24% oppose/strongly oppose). There are almost no partisan differences with Democrats, Republicans and Independents all supporting this proposal between 72% and 75%. The Hampton Roads region shows the highest level of support among regions at 92%.

Do you support or oppose banning candidates from using their campaign funds for personal use?

Do you think all groups that raise and spend money to influence Virginia elections should be required to publicly disclose their contributions, or do you think it is okay for that information to remain private?

Results: Large majorities of voters in the Commonwealth support a requirement that groups who raise and spend money in Virginia elections should be required to publicly disclose their contributions (88% to 10%). Support is high across regions, and partisan identities with some differences emerging between older and younger voters (91% to 85%).

The US Supreme Court has issued decisions restricting the ability of states to regulate campaign spending, based on free speech language in the US Constitution.

Results: A bipartisan majority of voters support a constitutional amendment that would give states more flexibility to regulate election spending (59% support/strongly support to 28% oppose/strongly oppose). The highest level of support is among Democrats (63%), followed by Republicans (58%) and Independents (57%).
These results indicate that Virginia voters view campaign finance reform as an important issue. Moreover, Republicans and Democrats actually find themselves on the same side of several campaign finance reforms, as shown in this survey.

-Dr. Bromley-Trujillo, Wason Center Research Director.

These polling results reveal that Virginia voters recognize that good governance is a critical barometer for our democracy.

- Shruti Shah, President and CEO of the Coalition for Integrity

Virginia citizens like myself seek campaign finance reform to enable our elected legislators to better reflect the interests and will of the average citizens of the Commonwealth.

-Nancy Morgan, Coordinator of the Virginia chapter of American Promise

Virginians, like voters across America, want more accountability and less corruption in politics. They are tired of special interests rigging the system in their favor. Virginians and voters nationwide have a right to know who’s spending big money to influence our votes and our government. It’s time to pass state and federal reforms to boost transparency and protect our First Amendment rights to have our voices heard in government.

-Trevor Potter, President and Founder of Campaign Legal Center (CLC)

These issues have been discussed in Virginia for many years and these polling results show that Virginians now expect the General Assembly to act.

-Heidi Drauschak, Executive Director of VaOurWay

This poll was made possible by the generous contributions of the following individuals:

- Ken Ackerman
- Karen Ackerman
- Kelley Annette
- Vicki Barnes
- Rachel Bartels
- Bonnie Beckett
- Nancy Bleeker
- John Boyer
- Lindsey Boyer
- Sasha Boyer
- Michael Calhoun
- Stair Calhoun
- Giselle Caruso
- Merritt Chesley
- Jessica Church
- Jeffrey Coupe
- Michael Deal
- Vonda Delawie
- Ann Delorey
- Marcia Diamond
- Doug Dickson
- Leah Dickson
- Janet Donahue
- Heidi Drauschak
- Rose Fabia
- Anthony Fairhurst
- Charles Fairhurst
- Kay Ferguson
- Zachary Filtz
- Anthony Fairhurst
- Karen Greenaway
- Travis Grout
- Meredith Haines
- Jeanne Hanewich
- Martha Harris
- Michael Hemminger
- Marie Henselder Kimmel
- Eric Higgenbottom
- Grace Higgenbottom
- Michael Horton
- Jack Houston
- Andrew Hunter
- Zeina Hutchison
- Sally Johnson
- Thomas Lane
- Chris LeMenestrel
- Ivy Main
- Suzanne Marks
- Trudy McCrea
- John McCrea
- Bill Millhouser
- Mindy Mitchell
- Vicki Moffitt
- Jill Morgan
- Sean Morgan
- Nancy Morgan
- Patricia Morrissey
- Jessica Mott
- Eliot Mott
- Kathleen Murray
- Jane Newell
- Jimmy O'Keefe
- Denis Orsinger
- Jan Perry
- Denny Phipps
- Anna Piatt
- Bill Piatt
- Natalie Pien
- David Pratt
- Saba Shapouri
- Shaha Shapouri
- Bob Shippee
- Maurice Skinner
- Janie Smith
- Josh Stanfield
- Julie Hanson Swanson
- Shelley Tamres
- Bob Tate
- The Tingley Family
- Marlene Walker
- Katherine White
- Dinah Wiley